Battered and bruised gardener claims . . .

A space alien attacked me — & tried to mate with my Weed Eater!

ARTIST'S conception of the space alien that allegedly attacked a gardener and mistook his Weed Eater.

A BUG-EYED alien reportedly assaulted a Weed Eater, similar to the one held here by Florida landscaper Fernando Nugent.

By TOMY CARLTON
Correspondent

A Mexican gardener says he was attacked by a space alien who tried to mate with his Weed Eater!

"He beat the hell out of me and was on my trimmer like white on rice," Oscar Diaz, 47, told newsmen who visited his home in Puerto Vallarta.

"I don't care if people think I'm crazy or not," he continued. "I know what happened and I've got the bumps, bruises and bent Weed Eater to prove it."

In his statement to police, Diaz said he was driving his truck down an isolated dirt road when a massive, bullet-shaped starship appeared directly in front of him, causing him to swerve into a field.

He said he was still behind the wheel — his truck engine dead — when a ramp folded out of the starship's belly and an alien with enormous eyes, pointed ears and long arms appeared.

"He trotted straight over to my truck," said Diaz. "He pulled me out of the cab and I was so scared I begged him not to kill me. But he started beating my head with his fists and didn't stop until I fell to the ground bleeding.

OSCAR DIAZ

"I was hurting so bad I couldn't move but he kicked me a few times for good measure. Then he went to the back of my truck and started throwing out my equipment.

"When he got to the Weed Eater he made a gasping noise and pulled it close to his chest. The next thing I knew he was on the ground with it. There was no question about what he was trying to do."

Diaz says the alien cuddled with the machine for two or three minutes before he returned to his UFO and vanished over the horizon.

The landscaper eventually managed to get back into his truck and drive to a hospital where he was treated for cuts and bruises and released.

Police Captain Jorge Luanna said detectives investigated but could find no evidence that a starship had landed.

"Diaz was badly beaten and his Weed Eater was bent but that doesn't prove anything," said the cop.

"Maybe he was attacked by an extraterrestrial, maybe he wasn't."

New hope for girl who's an old lady at 6

By MARTHA ATKINS

Six-year-old Jessica Harris is old before her time because of a rare aging disease — but she may regain her youth thanks to an experimental new treatment.

Jessica, who wears a bonnet on her bald head and has the wizened face of an old woman, is one of only 16 people in the world to have progeria, a disease for which there is no cure.

But now there is hope for her and other victims. Doctors at North Shore University Hospital-Cornell Medical College on Long Island, N.Y., are pioneering an experimental treatment that may help Jessica to grow and reverse some of her symptoms for three children," said the hospital's chief of genetics Dr. Ted Brown, who developed the new treatment with Dr. Fima Lifshitz.

"Now there's a glimmer of hope."

The tragic disease is so rare that it only occurs in 1 in 8 million births. By the time progeria victims are 1 or 2, they begin to take on the physical characteristics of the elderly.

They lose their hair, fail to grow and gain weight, their skin wrinkles and becomes thin, their joints stiffen and eventually suffer chronic heart disease.

"The average life span is only 13," said Dr. Brown. "Most die of heart disease or a heart attack."

The doctors are treating Jessica, who weighs a mere 18 pounds and is just 32 inches tall, with recombinant DNA, an active growth hormone. They are hopeful that it will halt the aging process.

The hormone has proven successful in the treatment of 4-year-old Kevin Howes, who has

A $1.1 million lottery winner has returned most of the money — saying the sudden rise from rags to riches has ruined his life.

"The money has brought me nothing by misery and pain," said jackpot winner Eduardo Trujillo. "My wife left me, my old friends don't speak to me and I am hounded daily by bums, policemen and poor relatives."

Lottery officials in Madrid, Spain, were astounded when Eduardo gave them a cashier's check for $881,672.50. He had spent just under $200,000 on lottery and over the county 20 of his relatives.

"Give it to charity. Give it to anybody, but please save them some of the dangers that go with wealth," said the 36-year-old stove clerk.

Eduardo thought that his dreams had come true when his winning numbers were drawn in the national Spanish lottery in Madrid.

"I thought this was the big break that would change my life," said Eduardo. "Well, it did change my life, but not the way I expected."

Eduardo said he and his wife Maria argued constantly over the money. "She wanted to spend, spend, spend and I wanted to buy what we needed and invest the rest," he said.

The bickering got so bad that Maria finally moved out of their home in Cadiz and went to live in Madrid. "I haven't heard from her in more than a month," he told the newspaper, Diario de Cadiz.

Schemers, friends and relatives hounded Eduardo day and night. "Everybody had a deal or wanted a piece of my action," said Eduardo.

Eduardo lost many good friends because he wasn't as generous as they expected. "I found out just who my true friends were, and there actually weren't that many.

"When I was just a store clerk with nothing, they accepted me as I was," he said. "But when I was rich, people expected too much.

"Returning the money was the best thing I ever did," said Eduardo, who still works in a clothing store.

"I NEVER thought of giving up," says Chris Fiedler after landing this record-breaking make shark.

130-lb. Florida woman catches 717-lb. shark!

The St. Petersburg, Fla., woman set a record with her 10-foot 7-inch-long catch. It's the heaviest mako ever hauled in at the USA's southernmost city.

By MARTHA ATKINS

"It put up a tremendous fight but I never thought of giving up," said Chris, 24. "There's no way you let go of a fish that runs like that."

Chris and her hubby Tom were in Key West on vacation and to celebrate her recent graduation from college. They'd been out on a day-long charter on Captain Ted Baker's boat Lethal Weapon when Chris snagged the shark.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Baker. "The mako crushed the bait with such force the splash was so big it looked like someone dropped a pickup truck into the water."

The Lethal Weapon was heading for home, trolling mackerel when the strike came.

"It hit right at sundown," said Chris. "We were all up top when it happened. I ran down and grabbed the pole. The line came off for about 15 minutes and it was a big double reel.

"The shark ran down all the way to the bottom, which was about 450 feet deep. They got a harness on me and I sat and pulled. It was really exciting."

Chris, who is 5-foot-9 and weighs 130 pounds, fought the jumbo mako for an hour and 10 minutes with 50-pound class tackle before bringing it into the boat.

Veteran crew member Mark Brengarten was able to subdue it with a 12-gauge hang stick. He then gaffed it in the gills and under its dorsal fin before he had the shark under control.

"I give her credit, she has the tenacity of a pit bull when it comes to fighting a fish," said Baker. "She wouldn't give up."

Though it was a lot of work, Chris says the prize was well worth the fight.

"I'm having it stuffed and mounted. We've got the perfect place for it, too — a 12-foot wall in our Florida room," she said.

GUYS NOT HOT TO GET HITCHED, SAYS REPORT

Bad news, gals! Unmarried men in their 30s are avoiding marriage like the plague.

Statistics show that the number of aging Peter Pans is growing. According to a 1988 census report, 23 percent of men in their early 30s and 14 percent of men in their late 30s had never married.

Guys say the reason they're not walking down the aisle is there's less social pressure to wed.

They also cite changing sex roles and an increased focus on career advancement.

'DEATH WISH' GUNMAN SHOOTS MUGGER!

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

Like vigilante Charles Bronson in the movie Death Wish, a mystery gunman dragged a mugger back to the victim to be identified — and then shot him twice.

Cops are still searching for the man who roared away in an Audi after dealing out his brand of street justice.

"The guy tried to execute him like in Death Wish," said a witness who asked not to be identified.

Mugging victim Jak Fai Lee, 56, was returning to his New York City apartment with an armful of groceries a few minutes earlier when he was accosted in the lobby by three punks.

"They asked me for my money," said Lee. As the punks ran, Lee yelled, "Help. I've just been robbed."

The mystery gunman grabbed one of the suspects as he ran by him.

"The other muggers went back to help, but ran when they saw the man's gun," said the witness.

After dragging the trembling thief back to Lee, the vigilante asked, "Is this the guy who robbed you?"

When Mr. Lee replied Yes, the gunman fired two shots with a handgun," said Police Det. Ron Stephens. "One shot grazed his head and the other wounded him in the right leg."

The wounded suspect, Richard Lyon, 21, crawled into his nearby apartment and called emergency 911. He was treated later at a hospital and placed under arrest.

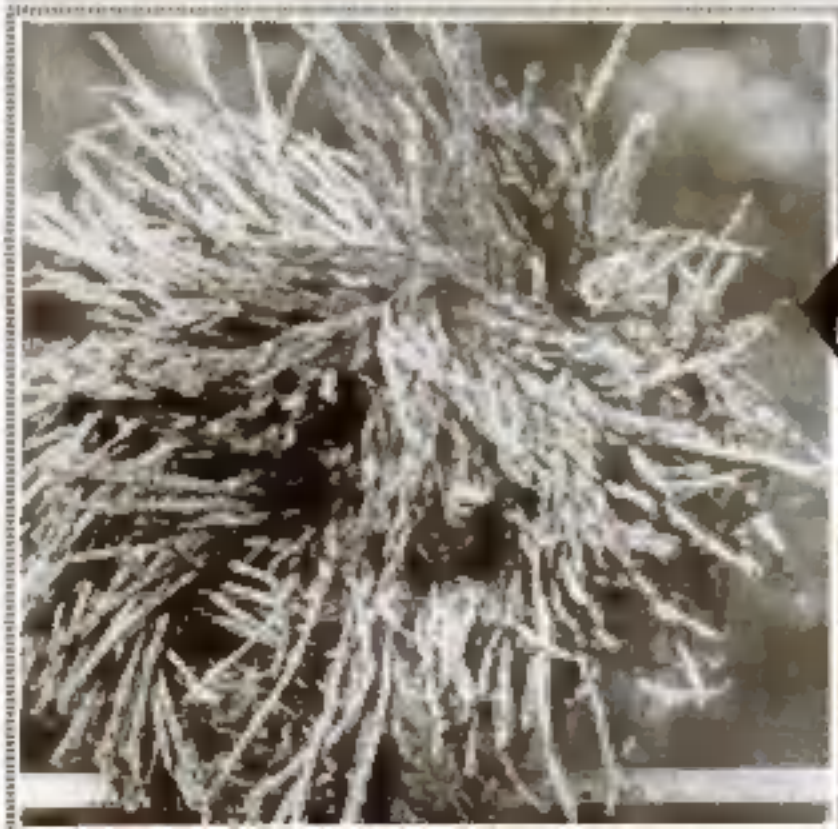
Cops said they have only a vague description of the gunman.

Lee was grateful the mysterious man came to his rescue, but regrets he doesn't turn himself in.

"He should just lay low because they'll charge him with possession of a dangerous weapon and attempted murder just like they did to Bernie Goetz," said Lee. Goetz shot muggers in a New York City subway and went to jail for it.

"I'd rather not see him get arrested for trying to help me. I wish there were more people like that. The cops weren't there so somebody had to save me."

Vigilante blasts thug — then disappears!



ACTOR Charles Bronson played a tough-minded crusader for justice in his Death Wish movies. Here he's shown in a scene from Telefon.

1000s flock to convent in southern France

By MICKEY McGUIRE
Correspondent

Thousands of sick and dying men, women and children are flocking to a tiny convent in France where they kneel in prayer before a centuries-old painting of the Virgin Mary that weeps real tears — and talks!

"If you will vow to devote your life to helping others, I will intercede on your behalf with my son Jesus. Go now in faith and await your blessing. Glory be to God on high."

These are the words witnesses swear they have heard coming from the 5-by-3-foot painting that hangs in a chapel at the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Toulouse, France.

"The voice is sweet and soft," said a convent nun who has heard the weeping Virgin speak to many of the pilgrims who kneel one at a time beneath the painting.

"It's such a beautiful voice. It's what I imagine an angel would sound like. When I hear it, I feel as though I'm in the very presence of God."

The pilgrims, many of them making the journey by foot from as far away as Paris, after prayers of devotion to the talking Virgin in the desperate hope she will perform a miracle cure that will end their pain and suffering.

Convent nuns say at least 34 of the stricken worshipers — the blind, the crippled, the diseased — have been completely cured!

"There could very easily be many more cures than we now know of," Mother Superior Catherine said in an interview reported in a Toulouse newspaper.

"The miracles have only taken place after those who have heard the voice have returned to their homes.

"The sisters are confident that there will be more miracles in store to our attention as time passes. The painting of the Virgin is in itself a miracle. The tears that stream from her eyes are real.

"The painting has been carefully examined by religious experts, as well as by three art experts from the Louvre in Paris. None can explain the origin of the tears or the voice."

The Mother Superior said the painting was in a convent storeroom when she first arrived there in 1947. It was later hung in the chapel where it has remained ever since.

A special committee has been appointed to investigate each miracle cure with the results being made public as they become available.

"We have already had preliminary interviews with several of the pilgrims who have claimed cures following their prayers to the talking Virgin," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said the initial list of miracle cures includes a 67-year-old woman who now shows no symptoms of the multiple sclerosis she had when she visited the convent.

A 41-year-old man confined to a wheelchair for the past 23 years because of crippling arthritis was able to walk without help four days after returning from his visit to the weeping Virgin.

And a 10-year-old boy, paralyzed from the neck down in a fall from a moped, stunned his

By JOE BERGER

Jealous groom Hector Saes wanted to make darn sure his blushing bride didn't cheat on him when he left town on business, so he locked the poor gal up — in an old-fashioned chastity belt!

And heartless Hector kept his helpless wife Anna imprisoned in the cruel contraption for two hair-ridying years.

"He'd take it off for a few minutes sometimes so we could make love, and then he'd clamp it right back on," recalled anguished Anna, 32.

"The darn thing weighed 20 pounds and every minute I had it on was pure hell. But I wore it because I love Hector and he threatened to leave me if I objected."

The hapless housewife's ordeal finally ended when she went to a clinic with a kidney ailment and dumbfounded doctors learned her problem was caused by a dastardly device straight out of the Middle Ages.

Hathcoated Hector, 29, was charged with assault and pleaded guilty. He was placed on a year's probation after promising to dispose of the sinister steel belt.

"My wife is so beautiful I know many men would be attracted to her," the shameless salesman told a judge. "I simply wanted to protect her."

The bizarre story began just two days after Anna and her jealousy-crazed groom tied the knot in Maturana, Peru.

"Hector had to go out of town on a business trip, and just before he left he told me he had something for me," Anna said.

"When he brought that awful thing out, I couldn't believe it. I didn't think they even had those things in the 1990s.

"It was almost impossible to sleep or even sit down, and going to the bathroom was always a nightmare."

But Anna's life has returned to normal since Hector resold the ghastly apparatus to the local ironworker who made it.

"Alexander didn't mind buying it back," he said. "He says he's sure there's another husband out there who will want to buy it now that the word is out."

Don't you eyeball me!

Sunbathing mom bakes to death!

Mother-of-two Judy Lynne Aron lay down by a swimming pool to sunbathe — and fried to death in the sweltering sun!

By SUSAN JIMISON

The 37-year-old Tucson, Ariz., woman passed out and spent six hours in 110-degree heat before other people at the poolside realized she was in trouble. She was rushed to a hospital where her body temperature was measured at a whopping 107 degrees and died despite desperate attempts to save her. "She lay out there in the heat of the day and it was a real bad day," Tucson Police Sgt. Robert Villaneuva told The NEWS. "Basically, she cooked to death."

Police say the divorced real estate agent had a few drinks before she went out by the pool at her apartment complex and lay down to get a tan. She was drowned in her swimsuit and for a long time no one noticed that she had stopped moving.

Finally, other pool patrons tried to wake her and discovered that she was unconscious from the sizzling sun.

Local emergency medical workers were called to revive Mrs. Aron. They packed the woman in cold towels, but she did not regain consciousness.

Mrs. Aron was rushed to Tucson Medical Center where her body was packed in ice. Her heart stopped twice and was restarted, but she died a few hours later.

"You could smell her flesh burning. I've never encountered anything quite like this," said one stunned hospital worker, who did not give her name.

"She was unconscious and it appeared that she had been in the sun an extreme amount of time," added Fire Department Capt. John Karubah.

"The woman was very red in color, very dry and hot to the touch and she was blistering."

Sharpeyes Julie may look like she's lying down on the job, but our busy-as-a-bee model is just taking a well-deserved breather before returning to her favorite hobbies — aerobics, dancing and roller-skating.

PHONY DOC PERFORMS

300 OPERATIONS

He's never lost a patient and he's never spent a day in medical school!

By SCOTTY PAUL
Special correspondent

A phony surgeon has performed at least 300 successful operations — and he never spent a day in medical school.

"I didn't have the money for college, but I had the time to read every medical book I could get my hands on," said Jean Claude Dejoulle.

Dejoulle's self-taught medical skills are even more amazing when you consider he has never lost a patient — and no one has ever complained about his surgery.

The 46-year-old doc claims he has performed everything from a tonsillectomy to cancer surgery at his clinic near Bordeaux, France, in the past 15 years.

His amazing operations have included:

- Tonsillectomy, 42.
- Heart bypass, 11.
- Cancer of the colon, prostate or stomach, 19.
- Kidney or spleen removal, 18.

Even nurses who assisted him at the clinic find it hard to believe he's a fake.

"I hear the state medical board is looking into his practice, said Marie Richevet. "Well ... they won't get anything from me and the other nurses except praise. He will always be Dr. Dejoulle to me."

Dejoulle was the son of a peasant who worked in the vineyards around Bordeaux. "We weren't rich and we weren't poor, but there was no money for medical training," he said.

The phony surgeon said he spent his free hours in medical libraries and gained "on the job" surgical training by watching every type of surgery imaginable at the leading hospitals of Paris and Marseilles.

"I have an above-average intelligence, a photographic memory and I'm a stickler for detail," Dejoulle told a reporter for the newspaper La France.

Dejoulle's incredible story came to light when he suffered nerve damage to his hands in an auto accident that forced him to close the clinic.

In writing an article about Dejoulle's career, the reporter discovered the "doc's" startling secret.

A spokesman for the state medical board said he has interviewed all of Dejoulle's surgical patients and none will say a bad word about him.

"I've talked to men, women, young and old and they all swear by the man," said the investigator. "He's delivered babies, removed spleens, lungs and performed nearly 50 successful cancer operations.

"We would be hard-pressed to build a case against him," said the investigator.

"It's a after-the-fact situation

YOU CAN MAKE UP TO

$9,800 in 24 Hours!

Dear Friend,

I made $9,800 in 24 hours. You may do better!

My name is John Wright. Not too long ago I was flat broke. I was $11,000 in debt. I'm single. Unemployed. My car became a problem. I couldn't even keep up with the payments. And next day the landlord gave me an eviction notice because I hadn't paid the rent for three months. So we had to move out. My family and I stayed at my parent's place for the rest of that month before I could manage to get another apartment. That was very embarrassing.

Things have changed now. I own two homes in Southern California. The one I'm living in now in Beverly Hills is worth more than one million dollars. I own several cars. Among them a brand new Mercedes and a used Jaguar Coupe. Right now, I have a million dollar bank account with my family and have certificates of deposit at hundred thousand in my bank in Beverly Hills.

Best of all, I have time to have fun. To be with friends when I want. I work about 4 hours a day the rest of the day I do things that please me. Some days I go racquetball or tennis. Sometimes, maybe, I just lay around under the sun with a good book. Once in a while I like to take long weekends. I just got back from a two week vacation from — Maui, Hawaii.

I'm not really trying to impress you with my wealth. All I'm trying to do here is to prove to you that it wasn't because of the money, since I was quite enough to find that out. I still would have been poor or close to near bankrupt. It was only through this amazing money secret that I found and myself was at debt and borrow trouble. Why happy folks would have happened to my friends may be.

Knowing about the secret changed my life considerably. It brought me wealth, happiness, and other important stuff — peace of mind. The secret did change my life, and I will give you everything you need and will make all your money problems. Of course you don't have to take my word for it. You can try it for yourself. To see that was in the secret, I'm willing to give you $2000 to each of the people on names at the bottom of this page. I figure it's worth $20.00. Can you remember. And you will prove it to yourself this amazing money secret will work for you, too!

Why, you may ask, am I willing to share this secret with you? To make money! Plain-ly. First, I already have all the money and possessions I'll ever need. Second, the secret does not involve any sort of investment whatsoever. Third, working it every day will be for me those sharing the secret only with those who make a golden commitment and get on a quality.

The secret is incredibly simple. Anyone can use it. Once you get started with producing no money at all and no risk at almost zero. You don't need special training or even a high school education. In fact, if anyone have young children who are able to walk with the use of them or even with you can use it successfully.

Let me tell you more about the fascinating money making secret.

With this secret the money can roll in fast. In some cases you may be able to cash in literally overnight. Somebody stole my pants!

Chief's been in lake 5 years — ever since jungle joker took his loincloth — in 1985!

By BYRON STEAN

A jungle savage has been up to his waist in water for the past five years because a prankster stole his loincloth while he was bathing in a lake — and he refuses to come to shore until the culprit brings it back!

"I'd heard stories about the old boy for several years but I didn't believe them until I went out into the jungle and talked to him myself," said Frank Barrera, a free-lance journalist from Belo Horizonte, Brazil.

"I spent two weeks with the guy and he didn't budge from the lake. He told me he'll stay in the water until he hears ever about if the joker who stole his loincloth hasn't owned back."

The bizarre drama unfolded when Aloara, chief of the Maimaco Tribe in Brazil's Upper Xingu Basin, waded into the lake to bathe in the summer of 1985.

When he returned to shore his loincloth was missing so he waded back to deeper water and waited until a tribal search party found him.

On his orders the savages returned to their village and tried to find out who stole the chief's clothes. Nobody would admit to it and a massive search failed to produce the cloth.

When Aloara heard the chore ever since. "The tribes-men told his fellow tribesmen that he would stay in the lake until the prankster stepped forward — and he's been there ever since," said Barrera.

"The tribe is now feeding him food and still try to persuade him to accept a new loincloth but he's set in his ways and won't hear of it," said Barrera.

TRIBESMAN, right, waits out in ground his chief Aloara, who has stood in this spot ever since he lost his loincloth!

Snoozing can be dangerous to your bulldog's health

Bulldog owners beware! Sleep can be deadly for your beloved pooch, says an expert.

University of Pennsylvania researcher Joan Hendricks has discovered that bulldogs suffer from sleep apnea, a disorder that also affects some humans.

In both humans and bulldogs, the problem is caused by a blockage in the nose or throat when inhaling.

And like humans with sleep apnea, bulldogs sometimes stop breathing while snoozing — and the researcher believes the stoppage can cause a dog to die in its sleep.

She says the villain in the bulldog's constricted nose, which makes it tough for him to breathe while sleeping.

The condition also makes the bulldog a particular menace

Italian Stallion Sylvester Stallone has finally found a filly worth bringing home to his battle-ax mom, Jacqueline.

The acid-tongued 63-year-old couldn't be happier about the latest love in her superstar son's stormy life — model Jennifer Flavin. "He's been with her for 2½ years now and she's a love," says Jackie.

Over the years Sly's mom has made kitchy attacks on the women he wooed and sometimes married. Jackie described his first wife, Sasha, as a "grubby little nobody." Towering girlfriend Brenda Ansten was "too demanding and too possessive." Mrs. Rocky 2, Brigitte Nielsen, Jackie dubbed a "double zero and a pig."

But Jackie is wacky over Jennifer. "She lives at home with her parents and helps on the ranch up here — she rides. And just last month the 27-year-old beauty had a most original to please Sylvester.

All his women have had big boobs and he likes that, but that's one thing I don't agree with. I would've changed my butt and tits on her, if they don't like it the way it is, then that's their problem," says Jackie. And that's the way it is.

GRIEVING HUBBY SUES CASTRO

FIDEL CASTRO: He sent us his criminals.

— for freeing the creep who murdered his wife!

By DICK DONOVAN

Widower of two Jerry Ludwig is suing Cuban dictator Fidel Castro — because the convicted killer he sent to America in the 1980 Mariel Freedom Boat Lift later raped and murdered his wife!

The still-grieving widower isn't after money, though he may get a chunk of the $100 million in Cuban assets frozen in U.S. banks since 1964. What Ludwig wants is his day in court.

"I don't think of anything else to do [but sue], the 48-year-old marine biologist told The NEWS. "I want people to know what Castro did to my family."

What Castro did was repulsively fiendish. As one of thousands of freedom-loving Cubans made the historic exodus from their homeland on the boatlift from Mariel to Key West, the wannabe leader purged his prisons of every type of criminal, crushing imaginable.

He allowed them to go to America knowing full well they weren't fit to mingle with decent, law-abiding people. He probably slept better knowing the trash of his society would soon be ruining hell in America.

One of those creeps was Leonardo Rodriguez, who at the age of 20, had already spent 10 years in a Cuban prison for robbery, rape and murder.

On July 7, 1984 — slightly more than four years after he arrived in America — Rodriguez murdered Ludwig's 40-year-old wife Joan as she made her daily three-mile jog on Florida's Plantation Key, where her husband worked for the U.S. Wildlife and Fisheries Service.

Some 10 hours later, Ludwig and his 13-year-old son Daniel found her body in a woods off the U.S. 1. She was wearing only socks and running shoes. The left side of her face and head had been bashed in. Her killer had raped her.

With no other suspects, cops zeroed in on Ludwig as the killer. He demanded a lie detector test to prove his innocence.

There is evidence in the Monroe County Sheriff's Office that Rodriguez bragged about killing and raping Joan Ludwig.

The frightful prisoner was the dirtbag who once shot cops having held for the kidnapping and rape of another woman. Under intense questioning, he confessed to Joan Ludwig's murder.

He's now serving four life sentences — to be served one after the other — in the Hudson Correctional Institution, in the Florida Panhandle.

In his lawsuit, Ludwig charges that, "Fidel Castro and Cuba knew that Rodriguez was likely to rape and murder others, and had confined him in prison to prevent harm to others.

"Castro and Cuba, by negligently releasing Rodriguez, breached their duty to exercise reasonable and skilful foresight for the safety and life of Joan Sue Ludwig and others."

If Ludwig wins his suit — there are many who say he won't and some who say he stands a good chance — he will have to navigate the U.S. Treasury Department to unfreeze some of Cuba's assets if he's to get his hands on any of Castro's money.

But money is just what the suit is all about. What's important is that the world is made aware of the crime Castro committed when he sent Rodriguez to America.

"I HATE CASTRO for what he did to my family," says Jerry Ludwig, above, here holding a picture of his murdered wife Joan.

SHOTTY Bart is setting a rotten example, says Ed

I'm so mad I could twist the knobs off my TV set over the stupid new cartoon show called The Simpsons!

My 1st daughter-in-law Candy has been letting little grandson Teddy watch it on Monday nights and he's turning into a baby horror.

I've never seen the dumb show but Teddy's starting to act just like the nasty brat on it called Bart Simpson I've read about.

My blood pressure shot up like a sky rocket the other day when I told Teddy to stop trying to get chewing gum on the cat's tail. "Don't have a cow, Ed," he said.

"Cut the crapola, dude! The cat's hip."

My jaw dropped so low you could have put a baseball in my mouth. Teddy had always been the sweetest, nicest kid you ever saw before that television show came along.

"Bart Simpson is my hero," he explained as he ran out the door before I could get him over my knee.

But that's not the half of it.

— and I'll be glad to give it to him!

Talks in the past week Teddy's gotten worse!

Wearing a bright orange Bart Simpson T-shirt, the little devil has:

■ Run a lawn dart into our next-door neighbor's living room and warned us the worst is still to come.

■ Put a cherry bomb in the Sunday school toilet just before his poor old teacher sat on it.

■ Had 20 gallons of ice cream delivered to our front door — then showed up with a gang of neighbor kids who screamed bloody murder when I had it returned.

■ Put a bar of soap in MY unused fish tank.

I don't know what the hell these Simpsons are but I'll go nuts to them to this week.

I think this Bart needs his tail turned for teaching our kids to be brats. And as soon as I'm finished with Teddy I'd be happy to put Bart Simpson over my knee!

Spinster leaves $45,000 to reptile and $595 to niece!

TORTOISE VERSUS THE HEIR

This is a story about the Tortoise and the Heir — and it isn't a fairy tale!

Fred the tortoise has learned you don't have to be a Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle to have fun in the slow lane — not when your owner dies and leaves you $45,000 in her will!

While Ninja Turtles Donatello, Leonardo, Michaelangelo and Raphael quiet karate chop their way through life, 84-year-old Fred can cruise along on easy street, even if he tries to be 100 — which he probably will.

By DICK DONOVAN

Before her sudden death, Dolly made Fred her sole heir to make certain that beloved pet and companion never has to worry about having a roof over his head or wonder where his next meal is coming from.

"Dolly adored Fred and wanted to make sure he was properly cared for after her death," the dead woman's niece Susan Kirkwood said.

"She used to take him for rides in a baby buggy. And in the winter, when Fred was hibernating, she'd tuck him in bed with her. Then, in the spring, she'd lay him on a cushion as if he were a baby. She even went shopping with Fred perched on her shoulder.

"To put it mildly our aunt wasn't an ordinary lady. She was a great eccentric and I always suspected she'd do something like this.

"It was a very bizarre relationship."

Susan, who lives with her disabled husband Stuart and daughter Amanda in Keynsham, England, as a $100-a-week pension check, had expected to receive the bulk of her aunt's estate.

Instead, she got an old family photo album and $595, while Fred — who is said to be in the pink of health — will receive the rest of Dolly's $45,000 estate.

Susan, who is also Dolly's closest living relative, said she was "shocked and surprised" by the will.

"I'm not a mercenary person but I do feel I've been treated unfairly," she said.

Dolly died in a Bath nursing home on Dec. 28, 1988, and her will was read on Jan. 19.

Susan said she was told by Dolly's lawyers that while Susan won't have control of Fred's wealth, she's the one who has the task of looking and caring for the pokey critter until he croaks!

Then she showed up with a gang of neighbor kids who screamed bloody murder when I had it returned.

■ Put a bar of soap in MY unused fish tank.

I don't know what the hell these Simpsons are but I'll go nuts to them to this week.

I think this Bart needs his tail turned for teaching our kids to be brats. And as soon as I'm finished with Teddy I'd be happy to put Bart Simpson over my knee!

What must be the richest tortoise crawling on this earth.

British financial experts say that if properly invested over Fred's lifetime, his $45,000 inheritance could balloon to well over $2 million.

But as Fred's passing, the R.S.P.C.A. will get it all.

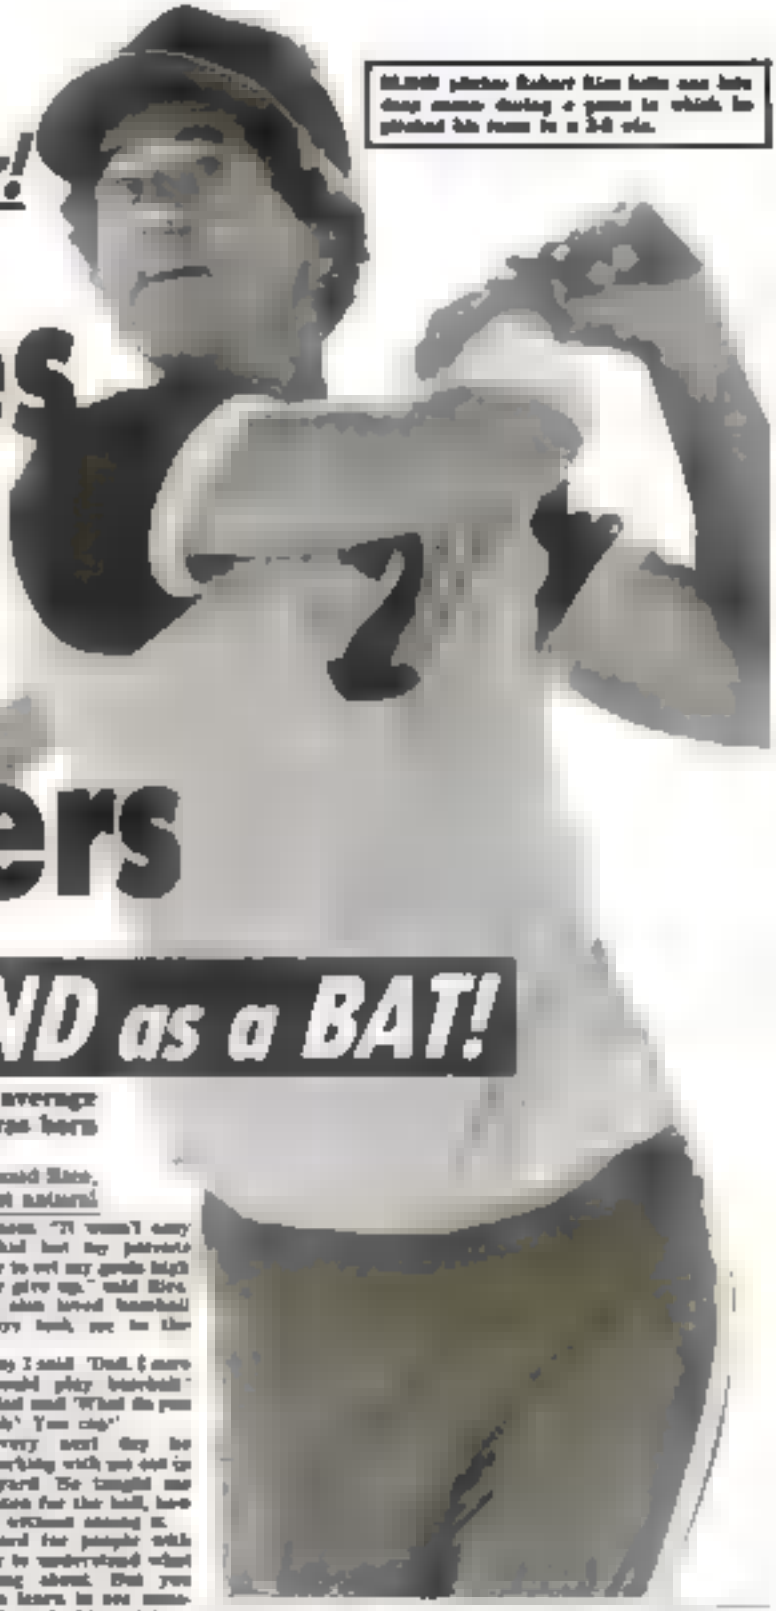
Meet the world's most amazing baseball player!

He pitches shutouts, hits homers



BLIND pitcher Robert Rice talks one batter down during a game in which he pitched his team to a 3-0 win.

. . . and he's BLIND as a BAT!

Baseball player Robert Rice has a .376 batting average and pitches with the best of 'em — even though he was born blind!

"I don't see the ball but I hear it and feel it in my bones," said Rice, 35. "I've been playing since I was a kid and it seems like the most natural thing in the world to me.

"I guess I was born to play baseball — and I do."

By TERRY GRIFFIN

Rice plays for a men's league in Costa Rica and has been a starting pitcher since 1980. Her manager and teammates have nothing but praise for the man whom admiring fans call "The Bat."

"We call him The Bat because he's blind as a bat," said Carlos Rodrigues, who also pitches for the team.

"Sometimes I get goose bumps just watching him on the mound. You may not believe it, but the guy has thrown two no-hitters and hit five home runs.

"A designated player runs the bases for him. Other than that, he's on his own."

Rice credits both his success as a businessman and baseball prowess to his mother and father, who encouraged him to lead a normal life in spite of his blindness. "It wasn't easy being a kid but my parents taught me to set my goals high and never give up," said Rice. "My dad also loved baseball and always took me to the games.

"One day I said 'Dad, I sure wish I could play baseball.' And my dad said 'What do you think you're doing right now?'

"The very next day he started working with me out in the backyard. He taught me how to listen for the ball, how to feel it without seeing it.

"It's hard for people with good eyes to understand what I'm talking about. But you really can learn to see something without looking at it.

"It's like when you have your back turned and feel someone come into a room. You know where they are without looking."

As remarkable as Rice is, he isn't the only blind man who plays baseball. At least two

Use colors to improve your mood

Seven hues to put you in the pink

Colors can strongly affect your mood — and you can use certain ones to actually make yourself feel better, as experts remark.

"By surrounding yourself with colors that have a great effect on you, or wearing an uplifting color, you can feel more cheerful and energetic," says Andrew Kargere, author of Color and Personality.

RED — The color of activity, red stimulates you and cheers you up. If you're down in the dumps or feeling icky on a rainy morning, wear red. "You'll perk up — and so will everybody who looks at you," said Dr Kargere.

PINK — It's also a pepper-upper but in a gentler ... changes or feeling icky on a rainy morning, wear red. "You'll perk up — and so will everybody who looks at you," said Dr Kargere.

PINK — It's also a pepper-upper but in a gentler ... them red. Pink has always been associated with good health, and wearing this color will not only pep you up but make you look glowingly healthy.

TURQUOISE — It encourages optimism and often makes you feel better physically. It generates a feeling of well-being — as if your confidence or enthusiasm are down, slipping them with an orange article of clothing, such as a sweater or scarf.

YELLOW — This color stimulates the intellect and is cheerful. "If you're feeling a little depressed, wear something yellow, or put yellow pillows on the couch where you can see them and get a lift from them," advises Dr Kargere.

GREEN — The color of nature, it's good for the nerves and associated with healing. It's a soothing color and should be used in rooms where you want to relax, such as your bedroom or living room.

TURQUOISE — It's a calm-calming color that decreases activity. If you're nervous or tense, turquoise will help calm you down. It's also a cooling color — so on a hot day wear turquoise and you won't feel the heat as much.

BLUE — The ultimate soothing color. It calms you down and aids sleep. It also makes you feel secure and comfortable. If you're a poor sleeper, try visualising blue all around you and it'll help you relax and fall asleep.

World famous psychic makes a bl[illegible]

By NELSON MANN
Correspondent

Everybody thinks Elvis Presley is buried ■ his Graceland ■asion in Memphis. But the fact is — The King's tomb is empty!

That's the word from famed seer Dr. Andy Reiss, who conducted a psychic investigation of Presley's alleged burial site and concluded that the body is missing.

"Elvis isn't at Graceland. He's not even in Memphis," said Dr. Reiss of Los Angeles. "People were led to believe that he was buried there but it was a ruse designed to keep them in the dark.

"It's more than a gut feeling. I perpetually sense the truth of this. The King is much closer to his birthplace in Tupelo. Miss. There's no doubt about it."

Dr. Reiss's blockbuster revelation is sure to send shock waves around the world as fans come to grips with the fact that Presley's 1977 burial might have been a hoax.

It also opens up five intriguing possibilities:

Possibility 1. Elvis faked his death and is still alive. Author Gail Georgia theorized as much in her 1988 book, The Most Incredible Elvis Presley Story Ever Told. In it she argued that the singer faked his death because superstardom had made his life a living hell.

Thousands of people claimed to have seen The King in the weeks and months that followed. But their accounts and a few blurry photographs of Elvis were never authenticated.

Possibility 2. Elvis is buried in a hidden or unmarked grave in or near Tupelo. During his psychic investigation of Presley's tomb, Dr. Reiss sensed that The King was in or near Tupelo. It stands to reason that he could be buried there because Tupelo is his place of birth.

Possibility 3. Elvis was resurrected from the dead and taken directly to heaven. And though it may sound farfetched, there is compelling evidence to support this theory.

Since The King died or disappeared in 1977 thousands of fans claim to have been healed after they testimonied his name in prayers, meditated over his picture or came face-to-face with his spirit.

So many people believe that Presley is doing good and miraculous works from beyond the grave that there is actually a movement to make him a saint.

And because Dr. Reiss has confirmed that Presley's body is not at Graceland, it's entirely possible that he could have risen up from the grave and gone directly to heaven.

Possibility 4. Elvis faked his death and traveled incognito for 12 years before he perished in a plane crash in Bolivia on Jan. 1, 1989. Longtime friend and confidante Jaime Chacon told the story last winter.

But exhaustive efforts by The NEWS and other media failed to uncover any hard evidence beyond Chacon's word to support the story.

Possibility 5. The King's remains were taken.

Dr. Andy Reiss made his startling revelation after a psychic investigation of Elvis' alleged burial site at Graceland. Here he meditates over a picture of the Memphis grave site.

Where's The King? Is he buried in ■ secret grave? Was his burial a hoax? — Or, is he STILL ALIVE?

[illegible] without Kristen,' says heartbroken Florida mom

Cops hunt little girl's sicko killer

8-year-old was strangled and dumped in canal

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

Third grader Kristen Gray skated along a hallway into the hands of a vicious killer who strangled the life out of her tiny body and dumped her in a canal.

That was nearly six months ago and her murder is still an unsolved mystery with no motive, no clues and no suspects.

"Most homicide investigations take a direction. This one never did," said Metro-Dade Police Det. Joe McMahon, who recently took 200 blood samples from people living in the Miami, Fla., apartment complex where Kristen was last seen alive.

"We don't know whether she was done in by a sex offender or was in the wrong place at the wrong time and saw something she shouldn't have," Det. McMahon told The NEWS.

"And we have investigated the possibility she may have been punished by a family member who got carried away," he said. "I hope the blood samples tell us something."

Kristen, an 8-year-old Junior Girl Scout and aspiring ballerina, was visiting her stepdad, Ron Shirk, when she vanished without a trace on the late afternoon of February 6.

Shirk, who is divorced from Kristen's mother, began looking for her when he finished washing clothes 45 minutes later.

Soon, the entire complex was searching for blonde-haired Kristen.

"We questioned everyone who lives in that complex and nobody saw anything," said Det. McMahon. "I find that very strange."

The mystery of Kristen's disappearance was solved 14 hours later when fisherman John Hurnley found her lifeless body floating facedown in a canal 11 miles from the complex.

An autopsy revealed someone had strangled the spunky little girl with their bare hands. McMahon won't say whether she was sexually assaulted.

More than 1,000 people have been interviewed by police, who have distributed 1,500 Crime Stoppers flyers. Rewards totaling $15,000 have been offered, but no one has stepped forward with clues.

Grieving mom Susan Shirk says it's still difficult accepting her little girl's death. "Even last week I thought, 'It's Wednesday, time for Kristen's ballet.' Then I realized she's gone," said Mrs. Shirk.

"I want a college of every wonderful moment I ever spent with her," said the heartbroken mother. "I used to sleep with the pillow she slept on. I still is keep her favorite doll in my room. There's such an emptiness without her."

A better way to fall asleep

If you have trouble falling asleep at night don't count sheep. Say "The" over and over again — and you'll go out like a light!

That's the word from psychiatrist Dr. Gerald Jampolsky, who conducted a study of insomniacs and found that sheep-counting can't dull enough to put modern people to sleep.

"Counting sheep probably worked a long time ago when sheep roaming was a major activity all the time," said the expert. People could relate to it because it was a major part of their work.

"But today, people should choose a simple word like 'the' and say it to themselves

Wrestling superstar killed & ate 2 men!

KILLCRAZY Kimala the Ugandan Giant carries a opponent into the ring and is transported to matches in a locked cage.

The 6-foot-8, 380-pound madman of the mat is a cousin of Ugandan butcher Idi Amin and has spent most of his life roaming the jungles of Africa.

In this country, he has been transported from match to match in a locked cage like the wild animal he is.

PEEPER POWER!

Your eyes affect what people think about you

By DON FORTILLO

What you do with your eyes while you're talking can affect the way people think about you, an expert reveals.

"A friendly gaze into another's eyes throughout a conversation will make them think more highly of you," said Sara Snodgrass a New York psychology professor. In a study conducted by Prof. Snodgrass, an interviewer spent a friendly, conversational time with people and subjects and then she constantly averted her eyes with others.

The result: When the interviewer maintained eye contact, the subjects she talked to gave her high scores in intelligence, likability, confidence and several other categories. "Obviously, eye contact is a power play — you can gain control over the person you're talking to if you make good eye contact.

"But if you stare reddishly at someone and they feel it's a hostile or angry look, it could leave them with a negative feeling," she explained.

Here are some useful tips from Prof. Snodgrass on how you can make your eyes influence others:

- Maintain eye contact during the conversation. Don't deliberately look away.
- Let yourself blink naturally by not thinking about it. This will prevent your gaze from appearing hostile.
- Nod slightly at the time. Don't glower.
- Let your eyes be naturally relaxed and open. Don't appear to an effort to stare the other person down.
- If you're sitting more than four feet away from someone, lean forward slightly. That will make it appear that you're impressed by what they're saying.

Peanut oil for breast implants!

Researchers have come up with a multi-fool safe material for enlarging female's breasts — peanut oil!

Since peanut oil is organic, it's said to be safer than silicone breast implants because it doesn't interfere with X-ray mammography for breast cancer the way silicone can.

The peanut oil implants should be available in about two years.

Awesome! Real-life Mutant Ninja Turtle found in Paris sewer!

By SEAN SANDERS
Correspondent

Sanitation workers found and photographed a real-life Mutant Ninja Turtle living in the sewers under Paris!

The masked, leather-clad man has fled and vanished each time he's been spotted.

But police say he really does live in the sewer and have credited him with breaking up at least three attacks on women.

The French press dubbed him a Mutant Ninja Turtle after the hit comics and TV cartoon show created by Peter Laird and Kevin Eastman of Northampton, Mass., the four costumed Ninja warriors were transformed from ordinary reptiles into super heroes who fight for justice in the World after an accidental bath in radioactive waste.

"We don't know who or what he is but he's definitely not one of us," said Police Lt. Gilles Clement. "He lives in the sewers by day and hits the streets at night.

"Judging from the descriptions of witnesses the man has broken up three sexual assaults and possibly more. I'm certainly not underestimating what he does.

"Vigilantes like him are breaking the law and we'd like to talk to him."

Reports that a mysterious man in black was living in the sewers under Paris first surfaced in March.

The press treated the stories as a paranoid's fantasy until a sanitation worker managed to photograph the man and police confirmed that the mysterious hero had broken up several crimes.

Since that time hundreds of citizens have crippled down into sewers to look for him but the man is so elusive that no more than a handful have seen him. "He's familiar with the sewer system, that's for sure," said Lt. Clement.

"The closest anyone has got to him was the sewer worker who got the photo. It's really a strange situation," he continued, "I've never heard of anything like it."

Navy man charged in rape of fellow officer

A young officer faces dishonor and 30 years in the brig if convicted of a crime unheard of in the proud history of the U.S. Navy — raping a fellow officer aboard a warship!

Lt. j.g. Robin E. Brown is accused of raping a young female officer in her stateroom aboard the USS Sunbacks, while the unnamed ship was anchored in the harbor at Ibiza, Spain.

The maximum punishment Brown could receive is loss of all pay and military allowances, dismissal from the service and 30 years at hard labor.

A Navy spokesman said the name and rank of the female officer is being kept confidential.

She is still on board the ship, while Brown has been assigned to other duties.

The incident is the second to rock senior officers involving a female at the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., after she was handcuffed to a urinal and photographed by a group of male classmates.

Teeny-bopper bride Omayra Rodriguez is happily married — even though the sixth grader is just 13 years old!

The Brockton, Mass., child bride got special permission from a judge and wed her hubby, 18-year-old Gregorio Rodriguez, in May. Now she'd set up housekeeping with her factory-worker mate and looking forward to starting seventh grade next fall.

"Ages are only numbers," said the teen wife, who looks older than her 13 years. "We love each other.

"I knew in my own mind that he was the one I wanted to spend the rest of my life with. That's all that matters."

Omayra's mom, Antonia Melendez, said she gave permission for her little girl to wed because she feared if she didn't Omayra might run off.

"She told me if I didn't want him here, she was going to the neighbor," she said. She says she tried to talk them into waiting until the bride was 16, but the couple refused.

They said their vows on May 16 before Justice of the Peace John J. Lyons. The justice said he was shocked when he discovered the bride's birth date on the marriage papers.

"I was dumbfounded — I thought it was a typographical error," he told The NEWS. "[Her birth date was] 1977 — I thought she was older and someone had made a mistake. But I checked it out and found out that the court had consented to the marriage, so I had to perform it.

"I didn't do it because I wanted to. There's no way I'd want to marry a kid 13 years old. That's a baby. I've never married anyone that young."

News of Omayra's marriage leaked out after the little girl went to school and told some of her sixth-grade chums she was Gregorio's wife.

"I feel bad for the couple, because they became the focus of a lot of unneeded attention," said Judge Charles Hiatt of the Brockton District Court, who approved the marriage. "I wasn't certain about the marriage, but the family, the community and the individuals involved thought it was O.K., so I approved it.

"They'd already gone to Pennsylvania together and come back. It was clear to the mother and the court that they'd be together somewhere else if not Massachusetts. They were going to live together without marriage anyway."

8 signs that tell you it's time to change jobs

How do you know when it's time to change your job?

According to career planning experts Marilyn Moats and Dr. Lawney Gump there are a number of signs to watch for:

● You find it harder to get out of bed in the morning and go to work. You dawdle over breakfast or reading the paper. You just don't look forward to leaving the house.

● You live only for the weekends. Because you find no pleasure in your Monday through Friday routine, all you look forward to are your weekends, holidays and other time away from work.

● There's been a major reorganization or merger at your company and you are no longer doing the job you were hired to do. You have fewer responsibilities and there is little chance for advancement.

● Your goals and the company's goals have become incompatible.

The company has changed the rules since you were first hired. For example, the company may have begun treating its customers improperly, according to your beliefs.

● You are suddenly given a totally different assignment that you can't do well or that doesn't interest you at all.

● You feel that communication with your boss has become impossible. You often feel you have to go over his head to his boss — and when you do this, you're the one who usually loses the dispute.

● You have become irritable at work and at home for no apparent reason. You're always yelling at your spouse and kids.

● You no longer take pride in your work. You've begun doing as little as possible.

The high-tech ankle bracelets would provide warnings to those with court orders protecting them from violent spouses or ex-spouses.

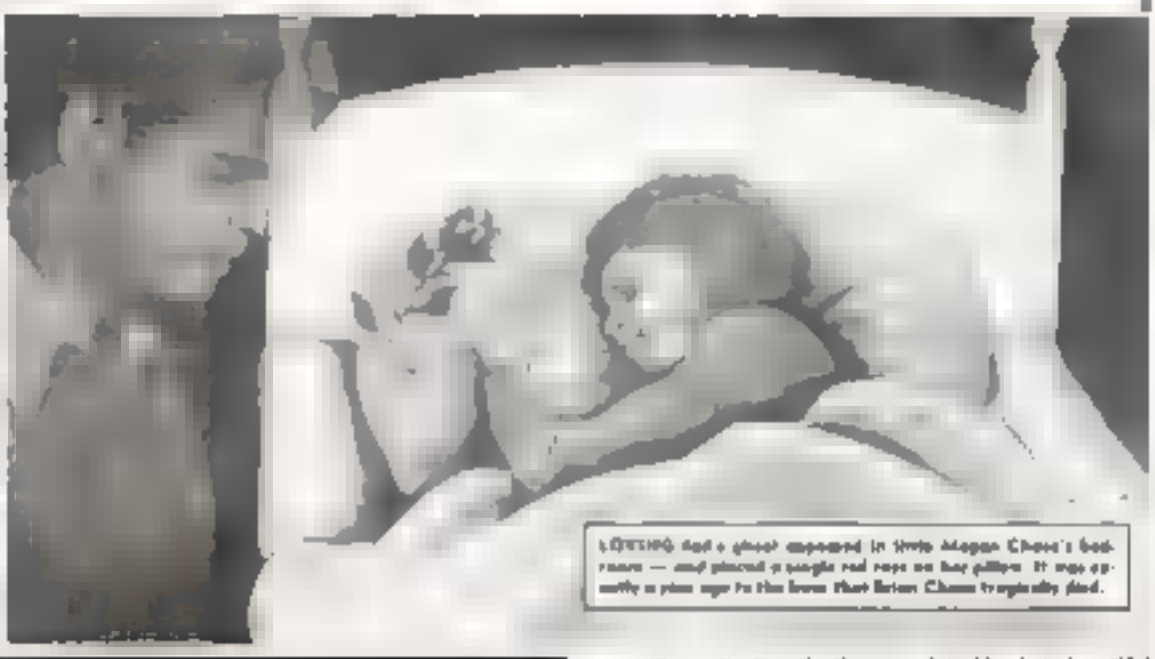
DEAD DAD BRINGS LITTLE GIRL GIFT FROM BEYOND THE GRAVE

By MICKEY McGUIRE
Special correspondent

[redacted] the morning of her birthday, exactly a year to the hour when her [redacted]y was killed, 7-year-old Megan Chase was awakened by a "feeling of love" and a gift from the grave — a single red rose on the pillow beside her!



A FEELING and a ghost appeared in little Megan Chase's bedroom — and placed a single red rose on her pillow. It was exactly a year ago to the hour that Brian Chase tragically died.

Single red rose is proof of her father's presence

It was that same symbol of everlasting love that Brian Chase clutched in his hand the year before when a speeding car snuffed out his life on a fog shrouded street in Swansea, Wales.

"That rose brought Megan more happiness than she's ever known before," Megan's 36-year-old mom Janet said. "Brian's spirit reached across the dark void we know as death to show her that he has not abandoned her or forgotten her.

"She hadn't been able to understand why her daddy is gone. She's lived with the terrible dread that he left because of something she did. She has been unable to accept the fact that he's dead.

"Finding that rose on her pillow has allowed her to understand that death comes to all of us sooner or later and that it's something we have no control over.

"She believes that her daddy left the rose to show Megan that true love never dies. Her birthday will always be a time of renewed faith in the power of that love."

While it was an act of love that brought Brian back from the grave, it was an act of love that sent him there on the grey dawn of June 18, 1988 . . . Megan's sixth birthday.

Brian had stopped to kiss Megan goodbye before leaving the house to buy bread at a bakery a few blocks away.

He must have been smiling as he walked through the fog that had rolled off Swansea Bay. Megan's birthday was always a very special day for Brian and Janet. Her birth had made them a real family and had completed their circle of happiness.

The bakery was owned by Michael and Sarah Longhurst, an elderly couple who hadn't been blessed with children of the neighborhood youngsters.

When Brian mentioned that it was Megan's birthday, ruddy-faced Sarah scurried to the living quarters in the back of the bakery and returned a few moments later with a single red rose.

"I had gotten the rose from a customer who has a greenhouse," Sarah later explained. "I told Mr. Chase to give it to Megan as a special extra gift. He gave her up with the more thought of giving it to her."

With the bread tucked under his arm and the rose in his hand, Brian left the bakery and headed for home, no doubt thinking about the party planned for Megan that evening. But the grim specter of death was waiting patiently, silently at a mist-veiled intersection just a block away.

There a speeding car left Brian's crumpled body lying in the street — the red rose still clutched tightly in his broken hand.

It was a cruel end, and Brian, who brought the rose to the Chase home that morning, find the words to break the news, but Janet didn't need to hear it. She could see it in his eyes.

The following weeks were rough for the newly widowed mom, but slowly she managed to get her life back on track.

But Megan withdrew into a shell, unable to understand what had happened to make her father abandon her. She wouldn't laugh, refused to play with other children, would sit alone in her room for hours, crying her heart out.

There on Megan's next birthday, unmistakable but beautiful happened.

"That morning, Megan came into my room," Janet explained. "There was a beautiful glow to her face . . . she looked radiant. And she was holding a red rose.

"She climbed onto my bed and said, 'Look, mommy. Look what daddy brought me for my birthday. See, he still loves me. He remembered my birthday.'

"She said she had awakened with a warm feeling of love and found that single red rose lying on her pillow.

"She said she could feel her father's presence in the room and she knew her father was telling her to never doubt his love for her.

"Megan doesn't understand it, yet. But someday she'll know in her heart that Brian had stepped back from the darkness of death to bring us both love and, just for her, a birthday rose."

White kid chops up roommate . . . after spat over rent, say cops!

By PETE COORE
Special correspondent

An electronics wizard with a short fuse shot his roommate in the head during a spat over the rent, then spent two days in the bathroom hacking up the body into disposable pieces, cops said.

Authorities in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., said the grisly crime was discovered when a dog fetching a stick retrieved a bag containing the head, hands and forearms of the victim, Julie Murphy.

Charles Commander, 22, described by investigators as "a very intelligent underachiever," was jailed on a charge of first-degree murder and held without bond.

Miss Murphy, the 20-year-old victim, had been staying at Commander's apartment temporarily while she was moving, according to police spokesman Orr Coffin.

During a quarrel over Miss Murphy's share of the rent money Commander pulled out a 25-caliber pistol and shot the woman in the head, detectives said. Then he dragged the victim's body into the bathroom and began hacking it to pieces, they said.

James Myerson, a 19-year-old drifter who occasionally stayed in Commander's apartment, was later arrested on a burglary charge and told police he had information about the gruesome slaying, Coffin said.

"Myerson said he peeked in the bathroom and saw a headless body wrapped up in a shower curtain," said Coffin.

Miss Murphy's head, hands and forearms were found along the banks of the New River, Her [illegible] of Dunkirker, reports.

Bighearted New York cabbie's a saint to city's hungry

SAINTLY cabbie Paul Nikla carries out a night's supply of sandwiches that he will give away on the streets.

SOFTHEARTED Paul Nikla helps feed some of the city's unfortunates with his generous midnight-to-wheels program.

By JACK DONOVAN
Staff Writer

Every night, Paul Nikla climbs behind the wheel of his taxi with a trunk full of sandwiches. And by morning the sandwiches are gone — all given to hungry street people he sees poking through garbage cans for food!

The 37-year-old Greek immigrant is the latest apostle of the legendary New York Cabbie. He's not arrogant. He's not rude. He's not dishonest. He's not fundamentalist.

He's a gentle man with a saintly mission in life — to feed a helping hand to those less fortunate than he.

"I care for other human beings," Paul told The NEWS. "It breaks my heart when I see people digging in garbage cans looking for a meal.

"I believe that if you are someone who needs help, you do what you can. The world would be a much better place if people had more compassion for others.

"I'm not special. What I do is not so great. I just do what I can."

But Paul is a godsend to the hungry people he encounters during his 3 p.m. to 5 a.m. shift behind the wheel of his cab.

On a typical night, Paul hands out 25 to 30 ham and cheese sandwiches, all made by him in his home in Queens. Some nights he dishes out rolls and cups of soup.

When he spots someone scrounging the streets and alleys for food, he stops his cab — even if he has a paying fare — and gives that person sandwiches by the only word he or she has taken that day.

And there's no taxpayer money involved in Paul's midnight-to-wheels program. He pays for it all out of his own pocket.

He's carried out his private mission to help the needy without fanfare. The last thing he wanted was publicity. But it came when a passenger revealed his secret to the New York Times and Limousine Commission.

The commission checked Paul's 13-year record as a cab driver, found it spotless and honored him with its Driver Recognition Award.

"His responsible behavior in these times of hunger and homelessness can only be considered extraordinary," commission spokesman Eugene Rodriguez said of Paul's selection for the award.

But Paul didn't feel that he deserved the honor and didn't attend the presentation ceremony.

"I don't do it for publicity," he explained. "I do it because I care for people and I'm a Christian."

Paul doesn't want the gratitude of those he helps each night. When they thank him, he says, "Don't thank me, just thank God."

Job stress can be a real heartbreaker

Job stress can cause heart wounds changes and could lead to heart attacks, says a new study by medical researchers.

"We're not claiming that job strain is causing heart disease. What we are showing is that job strain is causing a change in the muscle mass that could lead to disease," said Dr. Peter Schnall.

Schnall is a lead researcher at Cornell Medical School whose findings were reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Girl stabs herself — with a gate!

Marlodelmar Flores apparently tried to climb over the gate at her parents' house and impaled her arm on one of its fleur-de-lis-like prongs. Rescue workers took the gate off its hinges and flew both it and the girl to a hospital in Phoenix, Ariz., because they didn't want to make her injury worse by jerking her arm off the prong.

Surgeons freed the girl from the gate, officials said.

Top author's tips for older gals . . .

How to find the man of your dreams

Older gals have more experience and more savvy — and they can use it to snare a husband, says a top author.

Tracy Cabot, who found the man of her dreams when she was turning 40, has some clever tips to share with older women on the business of men. She's featured some of them in her new book, Marrying Later (Marrying Smarter - McGraw-Hill, $17.95) and she thinks they can do the trick. The love expert has been looking out advice to husband hunters for a decade now — with great results.

"My techniques are guaranteed to work," said Tracy. "They are a trap. I guess, but a loveless trap, a kind, loving trap and nothing that's going to hurt anybody."

Here, for NEWS readers, are her surefire tips for winning a perfect mate.

1. Make a real commitment to find a mate. Love doesn't just happen, you have to make it happen.

2. Decide to try something new. Don't just repeat your mistakes by doing what you've done before in relationships that failed.

3. Make a Man Plan. Sit down and think of exactly what you want in a mate. You want to find someone who will fit in with your needs.

4. Now devise a Search Plan. To successfully entertain a multiple you need a volume of eligible men. Singles bars are out — men you find there are rarely looking for a relationship. Dating services and personal ads in newspapers and magazines offer men who may be more interested in finding a mate.

5. When you meet Mr. Right, don't give too much too soon. He may get the idea you're desperate and needy.

6. Don't let him walk all over you. Put your foot down the first time he misbehaves. Don't be afraid to make a fuss — if he leaves you, you probably haven't lost much and at least you'll still have your self-respect.

7. Mirror — or mimic — your mate. Copy the way he dresses, the way he moves, the way he speaks. Pretty soon he'll feel comfortable with you without knowing why.

8. Find out if he's basically a visual person, an auditory person or a feeling-oriented person. Express yourself in his language pattern when you talk about how something looks or feels or sounds.

"The one without interest, silly," she answered.

'One of her dolls strangled our poodle,' says horrified mom

MY DAUGHTER'S TOYS ARE POSSESSED BY THE DEVIL!

By LAUREL ROWE
Newspaper Writer

Horrified mom Susan Hagler has lived in constant terror since the day her daughter's dimple-cheeked doll strangled their pet poodle to death — and she discovered all the little girl's toys are possessed by the Devil!

"We've got to get out of this house before those toys kill us the way they did that poor dog," panic-stricken Susan told a reporter.

"Every day something new and terrifying happens in Lacy's playroom. They're always leaving the room upset or splattering the walls with blood or letting out shrieks that chill me to the bone.

"And there's no way we can get rid of them.

"I've tried throwing them away — but the next day they're always right back in the room again."

The desperate divorcee is one [illegible] and other satanic toys that [illegible] her Palm Breeze home [illegible] that she called on a priest to perform a hasty exorcism.

But after trying to drive out the evil spells in the opening ceremonies, frustrated Father Louis LaChance threw up his hands in despair.

"These toys are possessed by a force whose powers are greater than mine," the priest said later.

"The minute I walked into that room, the dolls and stuffed animals used in the opening ceremonies and spitting blood in my face and screeching at me so loudly I had to cover my ears to keep from going crazy.

"I picked up a little hand puppet off the floor and it bared into flames, burning my fingers and singeing my eyebrows.

"I looked it out the window and watched it burn in a crisp in the driveway.

"I could literally feel Satan in that room — and there was nothing I could do to drive him out."

The mystified mom's nightmare began the day she walked into 6-year-old Lacy's playroom and found the child's pets dead on the floor. Mutilated by ghouls.

"She told me her dolls had torn up the place, but of course I didn't believe her," recalled terror-stricken Susan, 30, an American who moved to Paris in 1981.

"I was so furious I grabbed her to spank her — and all of a sudden, the dolls and stuffed animals and even her bicycle started flying around the room, hissing and shrieking at me.

"I looked at her favorite doll and she had blood — real, red blood — pouring from her eyes. And the next thing I knew, that doll grabbed our poodle Toby by the throat and squeezed the life out of him.

"I ran out of the room screaming. I really thought I was going crazy."

And ever since, the boys from hell have been a source of horror for the scared secretary and her little girl.

"All I want to do now is find [illegible] back out of here," Susan said. "Then they can burn this place down for all I care."

Brave brothers need your cards & letters

By CINDY O'NEIL

Stricken with a life-threatening illness, brothers Eric and Vernon Laurel long to make friends with NEWS readers. Cards and letters would bring a bit of hope and cheer into their difficult lives.

Eric, 11, and Vernon, 12, have been forced into wheelchairs by the devastating effects of Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy. Ravaged by the disease, their young bodies are barely able to perform the simplest movements.

"People think they are some kind of freaks," says Theresa Laurel. "But my sons are human too. They long to run and play just like other boys."

No longer able to attend school with other kids, the brothers keep each other company. But they long for some human contact. Cards and letters from our family of NEWS readers will give Eric and Vernon a link to the outside world.

Both brothers were recently hospitalized. Eric bravely underwent a spinal fusion that straightened his spinal column, allowing him to breathe. Vernon is recovering from a battle with pneumonia.

Since the death of her husband, Theresa has brought word for her prayerful vow.

"I keep my fingers crossed each day and pray for a miracle," said Theresa. "I know that cards and letters will make such a difference to my five children.

Fed-up Fred Kissel sued a sarcastic parrot named Siegfried for slander and won a whopping $25,000 in damages — because sassy Siegfried called him an old fishface!

"The judge was all set to throw the case out of court when that parrot looked me right in the eye and started spewing insults at me," the delighted pensioner later told reporters.

"He called me a lunkhead and a clown — and when he called me an old fishface, I knew the judge was going to add him good."

Judge Johannes Weber ordered the dirty birdie's owner Otto Kopf to cough up $25,000 for beaching the bigmouthed bribdy to spout curses at Fred, their next-door neighbor in Cologne, West Germany.

"Every time I went outside, Otto would be sitting out there in his lawn chair with that damn parrot," recalled furious Fred. 58

"And as soon as Siegfried saw me, he'd start calling me things like numbskull and banana brain — and a few names I can't even repeat. He believed so loud all the other neighbors could hear him and it was very embarrassing for me.

"That bird was making my life such a nightmare I thought about getting a shotgun and putting him out of his misery."

Instead, frustrated Fred filed a slander suit against the arrogant parrot and his owner.

At the trial, as unrepentant Judge Weber had many Siegfried brought into court so Fred's lawyers could show what a loudmouth he was. But for a day and a half, the roguish parrot sat there silent as a mouse.

Then, just as the judge seemed ready to toss the case out, the mischievous birdie suddenly couldn't keep his trap shut a minute more.

"You're a clown," he squawked at Fred. "You're a lunkhead.

"You're an old fishface. You're an old fishface."

Judge Weber got an awful and awarded Fred the entire amount he'd asked for. But outraged Otto, 68, walked off insisting he wasn't to blame for Siegfried's crude comments.

"I didn't teach him that stuff," the parrot's pal said sourness. "That Fred is the neighborhood pain in the neck.

"Siegfried must have heard what

Blind man loses his gun permit

Blind man Richard Penney is upset because town officials took his pistol permit away.

The Middleton, N.H., man says police have denied him the permit because of a lawsuit he has pending against the city, but officials say there's no connection. They say Penney is legally blind and shouldn't be allowed to carry a handgun.

"I am not a drunk or a brawler, or a convicted felon and I have been involved in town politics for years," said Penney, who wants to use his pistol for protection and target practice. "The only thing I have to lose vision and the law says nothing about vision. No other Middleton resident has to offer proof

Hit-and-run horror! Victim lay in middle of busy highway 4 days before anyone stopped!

By JACK ALEXANDER and SUSAN ANISON
Staff writers

A hit-and-run victim suffering from horrible injuries tried for four days to wave down passing motorists on a freeway and nearly died before anyone came to his aid!

Juan Camacho, 20, says he thought his internal injuries, shattered pelvis, broken arm and broken shoulder would kill him before he could get to a hospital. And after a few days his hunger and thirst were so bad he began to hallucinate.

"At first I was really scared," said Camacho, who was hit while trying to cross an eight-lane highway near Coachella, Calif. "Then after a while I had stayed there so long, I was just sort of dazed. I was giving up hope.

"One of my hands was O.K., so I waved it, but no one stopped. I used all my strength to drag myself to the side of the road. Thousands of cars passed, but they didn't see me."

An motorists whizzed by on both sides of Interstate 5, Camacho lay in the median of the highway shouting for help. He grabbed the branch of a tree in the median and shook it to attract attention, but no one saw it and stopped.

As the days passed, shock from his injuries caused the agricultural worker to become listless and weak. He says he imagined nearby telephone wires were murmuring his name for help. When finally he was rescued by a sharp-eyed motorist who spotted him and called 911 for help, Camacho surprised doctors by having survived at all.

"Even if people got used to these types of injuries within the first hour, many of them die," said Dr. Edgar Cardoza, who treated Camacho at Scripps Memorial Hospital in San Diego. "And here he was with alive, despite lying by the side of the road for so long."

San Camacho believes a guardian angel saved him from death.

"It's thanks to God that I survived," said the grateful young man in an exclusive interview with The NEWS. "I know He watched over me and helped me."

"Now doctors say I'm going to be O.K. They say I'll have to spend at least two months in the hospital, but after that I should be as good as new."

'God watched over me,' says survivor, 20

THOUSANDS of cars passed Juan Camacho as he lay injured in the median of a California freeway. He's in the hospital now, recovering from his nightmare ordeal.

'It's a miracle from God!' say parents of 6-year-old

SPACE ALIEN CURES GIRL'S HEART DEFECT!

By TOM SPINNER
Correspondent

A Swedish couple say they were visited by a space alien who miraculously cured the heart defect that would have killed their daughter within weeks!

Accounts of the incident that appeared in Swedish newspapers were careful to point out that the couple's claims were undocumented.

But a doctor's assurances that 6-year-old Karin Wessman's heart is now strong and perfectly formed seems to support the incredible story.

"It is a miracle from God and the heavens," Christina Wessman, the child's mother, told newsmen in the Swedish hamlet of Varnamo.

"This creature from space saved our daughter's life and made her well forever."

Mrs. Wessman and husband Klas said the extraterrestrial walked into their house without knocking on June 17 — just two days after heart specialist Carl-Erik Jansson told them that the heart defect their daughter was born with would kill her in a matter of weeks unless a suitable donor heart could be found.

With the exception of a single large eye in the center of his face, the creature reportedly looked human — and paralyzed the Wessmans with a ray of greenish-blue light that shot from the palm of his hand.

The couple said they couldn't move but were conscious as the alien left the living room they were sitting in and returned with their sick daughter cradled in his arms.

"He moved like a figure in a dream," said Mrs. Wessman. "He was carrying our precious Karin and he placed her on the kitchen table."

For two hours the extraterrestrial spoke gently to the child in a language the Wessmans didn't understand. He then placed a pair of glowing metal tubes next to her heart and raised both hands over his head.

"Five minutes passed," said Mrs. Wessman. "Then Karin jumped up from the table and hugged him. He looked at us and blinked. And when he did, my husband and I could move.

"He told us in Swedish, 'Your daughter is well.' Then he stepped through the front door and climbed into a black spaceship that was shaped like a bullet. It made a whirring noise like a washing machine on spin cycle and disappeared."

Dr. Jansson confirmed that the child's heart is now strong and healthy but offered no explanation for the disappearance of the defect that was diagnosed at birth.

"I'm not going to speculate," he said. "I don't know what happened and I doubt I ever will."

Fried cop killer gets his wish

Now he can worship Satan — IN HELL!

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

A crybaby cop killer wanted to worship the Devil while waiting on death row and he'll get his wish — he's been fried in the electric chair.

John Swindler became the first person executed in Arkansas since 1964.

The lawsuit-happy killer wanted court damages of $350,000 at the time of his death because he claimed prison officials wouldn't let him worship his evil idol — Satan!

He wanted permission to read the satanic bible and to wear a mail-order medallion. He said prison officials should also create satanic religious services.

Swindler

Prison bigwigs contended the lawsuit was just another ploy by Swindler to stay alive. But it didn't work.

He was electrocuted for gunning down a cop in 1976. He also was convicted of killing two South Carolina teenagers.

"Mr Swindler can now spend all the time he wants with the Devil," said a prison spokesman.

"I'm pretty sure he went straight to hell."

Swindler was a pain in the neck to prison officials, suing them numerous times over alleged mistreatment on death row.

"Swindler will attack the American prison system any way he can," prison spokesman David White said earlier.

Swindler claimed to be a satanist, but during a recent federal court hearing the convicted killer told jurors he was

REAL LIFE INDIANA JONES!

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

As a thrill-hunting teenager Jack Wheeler scaled the Swiss Alps, swam in shark-infested waters, and shot dead a man-eating tiger in launching an action-packed life that was to make him famous the world over — as a real-life Indiana Jones!

He's scaled the Alps, killed a tiger — and hobnobbed with headhunters!

In building his global legend, 16-year-old Jack lived among Amazon headhunters who adopted him into their tribe after he endured an initiation ritual that almost killed him.

"They sent me into the jungle and I had to find my way back through a maze of deadly traps they had set to ward off enemy raiders," the now 48-year-old daredevil said.

"They had rigged spike-studded branches that twice missed me by inches after I had tripped their releases. And there were pits with poison-tipped spears sticking up from the bottom.

"After adopting me into their tribe, they allowed me to watch as they shrunk the heads of their dead enemies."

Jack, who holds a Ph.D. in philosophy, began his lifelong search for adventure at the age of 14, after reading a spine-tingling account of a man's climb to the top of the Matterhorn in Switzerland. "It triggered something inside me," he explained. "I said to my father, 'I want to climb that mountain!' He encouraged me and a few months later took me along on a business trip to Europe so I could attempt to climb.

"I made it to the summit and I remember being up there in the cool, clear air at the top of the world — and I made up my mind, 'This is what I want to do.'"

At 17, Jack plunged boldly into the untamed jungles of Vietnam to track down and kill a rogue, 8½-foot-long tiger that had killed and devoured 30 villagers.

"My Vietnamese guide and I killed a water buffalo as bait to attract the tiger," he recalled. "Then we lay in a blind in pitch-black darkness for three nights waiting for the tiger to show up. On the fourth night we heard savagery ripping sounds as the beast tore off huge chunks of the rotting buffalo.

"I had a flashlight wired to the barrel of my rifle, and when I turned it on I saw a fearsome sight . . . one I'll never forget. Two of the biggest, ugliest, blood-red eyes I'd ever seen.

"I fired and instantly knew I'd hit the tiger because the jungle quiet was shattered by its screams of rage. I left the blind and ran toward the wounded tiger — probably the most foolish thing I've done in my life.

"The pain-crazed beast hunkered itself as I fired a second shot, holding the gun at waist level. The bullet slammed into its chest and it fell dead at my feet."

His devil-may-care adventures included travels with guerrilla fighters in Nicaragua, Suriname, Angola, Mozambique, Cambodia and Afghanistan.

"My life has been crowded with thrills," the real-life Indiana Jones agreed, adding with a knowing smile, "but I'm convinced my best adventures still lie ahead."
